

A Window to
your child's world...

Life of a parent

Noisy mornings + Rush hour traffic + Meetings through the day

After you see off your beloved child rushing through the morning madness with little time to breathe or collect your thoughts, suddenly you recall that the school fee needs to be paid.

Or that your daughter is participating in a school event and has a rehearsal schedule that you've misplaced.

Taking time out of a hectic schedule can be quite challenging especially if it involves a physical visit to the school. At the same time, you are a conscientious parent and want to be in better control of your child's academic activities.

What you need is

 pcom...
parent communication

pcom is the newest, most interactive and the easiest way you can keep abreast with your child's activities in school, his schedule, his attendance record, his marks etc...

The Need

A growing number of schools are using websites and email to provide parents with information on upcoming school events, exam dates, school policies, academic programs and more.

Is your child's school among them?

An increasing number of teachers email information to parents regarding homework, field trip notices and class projects etc.

Are you able to effectively communicate with your child's teacher?

An increasing number of parents are receiving updates on unscheduled holidays etc. on their mobile phones.

Are you one of them?

What we Offer
